Sunday, April 10, 2011 at 3 pm

JUNGALBUNDI, which means “playing together”, is a quartet of members from the Pangean Orchestra that combines ancient and modern instruments from many continents in an inspiring and inclusive infusion of World Music. The musicians are Rose French, horn; Colin O’Donohoe, percussion; Kevin Qais Essar, rebab; and Porangui Carvalho McGrew – didgeridoo, percussion, and berimbau. The musicians will each play a solo, and then they will play together.

Tickets are available at the door for $10 for adults. Students through high school are admitted free.
